

Five media companies currently control 70% of the broadcast media. During the prelude to the Iraq war, the media was remarkable compliant in accepting the claims (many still to be demonstrated) of the Bush Administration. This to me doesn't sound like a media that needs more concentration.

May I remind you that these are the PUBLIC airways and not any other commodity. I've been astonished how Chairman Powell has been so at ease being cozy with the broadcast industry--while essentially locking out any forum for a public review process.

Do we live in a representative democracy--or is that all a facade?
...a matrix?

If your vote is already bought and paid for (in trips and time with the broadcast industry), please admit it... But perhaps you might look for a different more inclusive approach that better meets the needs of ALL parties including common citizens like me.

Vote for a more open and inclusive process on June 2!

Thank you.

Dave Wells